RESOURCES FOR A HEALTHY COMMUNITY

*During 2000-01,
Mount Zion Health Fund (MZHF) allocated over $5,000,000 to a variety of organizations focused on improving the health of vulnerable populations.*

Community agencies successfully proposed creative and responsive initiatives to address a spectrum of health-related needs. Simultaneously, the continued reshaping of UCSF Mount Zion, with the opening of the Cancer Center and the relocation of programs to that campus, created opportunities for MZHF to sponsor new projects in several different departments. MZHF's special partnership with the Goldman Institute on Aging resulted in a major capital gift to support that organization's building campaign.

A continued emphasis on improving the health of Russian émigrés led to several grants. The Émigré Leadership Institute, with support from MZHF, initiated a community educational campaign and screenings for Tay-Sachs disease, a genetic illness that disproportionately affects the Jewish population. MZHF also built on its previous commitments to assisting this population with a second year of support for the Newcomers Health Program located at San Francisco General Hospital, which offers health education and screenings targeted to refugees. This program represents a unique collaboration between the International Institute and San Francisco General Hospital's Refugee Medical Clinic. Funding was also renewed for Jewish Vocational Service's program to train refugees as licensed vocational nurses. This program enhances participants' work skills and employment opportunities while simultaneously increasing the pool of trained bilingual nursing staff currently in high demand by our city's health care facilities.

Programs to improve the health of persons with HIV/AIDS were the focal point of several grants. A media campaign to increase awareness of Hepatitis A and B immunizations in the gay and bisexual community will be developed, an effort that could not compete for limited public funding. A general operating grant was made to Continuum, which has received past funding in support of its adult day health center. A second year grant was made to Jewish Vocational Service to support its program targeted to assist people with HIV/AIDS confronting work force reentry issues.

Two separate grants benefited at-risk young adults. The San Francisco Education Fund's Peer Resources Program received a grant to help continue its Youth to Youth Health Education Project in San Francisco's public schools. Huckleberry Youth Programs was granted funds for its Cole Street Youth Clinic, which provides medical care as well as prevention/education and psycho-social services to troubled youth.

Continuing the focus of outreach to vulnerable populations, MZHF approved a grant to the Breast Care Center of the UCSF Mount Zion Comprehensive Cancer Center to help purchase a prototype digital mammography van. The van will use state of the art technology to bring critical mammography screening services to underserved minority communities in San Francisco and other Bay Area counties. Additional support for the Cancer Center went to the Tobacco Education Center, newly established at the Mount Zion campus, which provides innovative smoking cessation programs along with cutting edge clinical and educational services to patients and health care providers. MZHF also approved a contribution to a unique program in cardiology, the Cardiomyopathy and Arrhythmia Research and Education Center. Designed to address the growing burden of heart failure on the health of the ...continued on back page community, this program will utilize a multidisciplinary team of health care professionals to provide efficient, comprehensive and streamlined care for the heart failure patient in an outpatient setting.

☞ A major initiative in women's health at Mount Zion also continued to take shape, as MZHF approved support for the key research component of this program. Fellowship funds will help develop a cadre of well-trained researchers dedicated to issues in women's health. Grant money will also be available on a competitive basis for clinical translational or health services research projects designed and directed by the fellows.

☞ Recognizing the value of Goldman Institute on Aging's services for older adults, MZHF pledged significant support for the GIOA's major building project at the Coronet theater site. Their development of a new facility will enable them to consolidate programs, services and administrative functions under one roof. Additionally, the new building will provide room to extend current services to more seniors as well as offer new resources. MZHF is proud to be a partner in this effort to provide a model of care to older adults.

☞ MZHF is already reviewing additional proposals in the new fiscal year. We are continually appreciative of the many gifts that multiple generations of donors have contributed and are honored to play a role in allocating these resources for the health of the community. □
